Baby DNA Battle Win and Loss

In 2009, we helped nine families sue the Minnesota health department for storage and use of baby DNA without consent after newborn screening. Parents have no idea state governments are doing this. Two years ago, the Minnesota Supreme Court ruled in favor of the parents. Two weeks ago, the case was settled. All the Baby DNA and genetic test results will be destroyed.

But state health officials have been working to change state law to prevent future lawsuits and to again store baby DNA without consent. Find your state’s newborn screening law and DNA storage policies online at itsmydna.org. Get engaged now to help us stop the government’s taking of Baby DNA.
