Say No to Partnership Exchange

Another arbitrary Obamacare deadline come Friday, the day the federal government wants states to tell them if the state wants to run an Obamacare exchange – a federal takeover center – in partnership with the federal government. There is no such thing however, as a partnership in Obamacare.

As states refused to set up this federal website and massive data-sharing system, regulators got nervous. So they dreamed up the partnership model. In short, states would be given a federal website with a state name, and the federal government would run all the IT operations—and charge states a fee. The “partnership” is a Trojan horse. No state should agree to partner with the feds to impose Obamacare.
