February 23, 2016

Battle Shows SCOTUS Too Powerful

Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia died ten days ago. A political battle is now raging. President Obama plans to nominate a successor. And understandably, with the possibility of the next justice being in place for decades, Senate Republicans have said they want to wait for the next president to make the appointment. They don’t plan to approve Obama’s nominees.

Experts says the cases that were already heard will be published without Scalia’s vote, including one on state health databases collecting everyone’s health insurance claims. Cases that are tied 4-4 may be called back when all nine justices are in place. Some say this battle is a sign of the Supreme Court being too powerful. I have to agree.

Presented daily by Twila Brase, President, Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.

The Health Freedom Minute is now heard in 41 states: Mornings M-Th at AM1280 (The Patriot) in MN and 91.5 AM WHKC (FreedomFM) in OH, afternoons on American Family Radio, and daily on the Bott Radio Network.