February 2, 2015

Three Legal Alternatives to Obamacare Enrollment

There are three legal alternatives to Obamacare enrollment.

First, you can choose private insurance either on your own or through your employer. But if your employer sends you to the government exchange, it’s not private insurance. Second, you can choose one of the nine exemptions, such as a health sharing organization. Or you can choose one of the 14 hardship waivers, which almost anyone can qualify for. And third, you can choose to go uninsured and pay the penalty-tax. Under the Constitution, as the Supreme Court ruled, you cannot be forced to buy health insurance.

So now it’s up to you. Pick one of the three and refuse to enroll in Obamacare.

“Three Legal Alternatives to Obamacare Enrollment.” Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.