February 4, 2015

Five Questions to Ask About Telemedicine (Cybercare)

Telemedicine is like Skype. You talk face-to-face with a doctor using a digital screen. Lobbyists want Congress to loosen funding restrictions on its use, starting with Medicare. Here are a few questions to ask about moving to cybercare:

• Who owns the data of your conversation?
• Will doctors call the police if the video captures something suspicious taking place in your home?
• Is it wise to move medical decision making away from hands-on-patient care?
• Will you talk freely if your conversation is videotaped and how long will the tape be kept?
• Will telemedicine lead doctors to more readily follow government treatment directives because they feel less connected to or responsible for the patient?

Presented daily by Twila Brase, President, Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.

The Health Freedom Minute is now heard in 40 states: Mornings M-Th at AM1280 (The Patriot) in MN and 91.5 AM WHKC (FreedomFM) in OH, afternoons on American Family Radio, and daily on the Bott Radio Network.