February 6, 2015

Patient-Unfriendly Obamacare

One doctor enthusiastically shared how Obamacare will change health care. Doctors will focus on populations not patients. Hospitals will be “paid a certain amount to care for a given population, and no more.” This means rationing of care. He says doctors will no longer be paid for the actual services they provide. Instead, they'll be paid for keeping the patient healthy. Consider how intrusive that could be.

He says hospitals will track the conditions of their populations and mine the patient’s data, including genetic data and lifestyle behaviors. He said doctors will be able to study more patients allowing them to limit care to so-called “best practices” (a euphemism for rationing). This is full-blown patient-unfriendly Obamacare.