Full Repeal is Better, Per CBO

Full repeal of Obamacare is better than partial repeal. Cost estimates from the Congressional Budget Office note that if the regulations, which are the hidden cost centers of the law, are not repealed, health insurance premiums will rise an additional 20 to 25 percent next year and double over the next decade.

Leaving Obamacare regulations in place would cause health insurance markets to collapse and 10 percent of Americans would have no access to insurance at any price. In fact, nine million Americans who would be insured if Obamacare was completely repealed would be left uninsured if it was only partially repealed. Act now. Tell Congress, “Repeal it all. Repeal it now. Do not Delay.”
