Trump Betrays Price Control Plans

Donald Trump has a health care plan. The first six points are standard GOP talking points. The seventh point is troubling. It calls for Congress to “do what is right for America.” Trump’s plan explains: “Though the pharmaceutical industry is in the private sector, drug companies provide a public service.” Thus he proposes that Americans be able to access drugs from overseas.

This is a version of price controls because other countries negotiate low prices for the limited American-made drugs they allow their citizens to access. But now consider, on the basis of providing a public service, what other industries might Mr. Trump propose price controls for? Farms? Grocers? Banks?
