36 States Help Obamacare Fall Short

The Obamacare enrollment websites of the 14 state exchanges are working better than healthcare.gov, the federal exchange website. To be clear, whether created by a state or the federal government, all Exchange websites are part of the intrusive data-collecting national Obamacare exchange system.

The administration never planned on building healthcare.gov, and it hasn’t gone well because of time and money constraints. They had hoped all 50 states would build and fund the federally-controlled websites and computerized networks, but 36 Governors said no. These 36 have stopped Obamacare from being successful. Thank your governor if you live in one of these states.
