Year Six-Time to make Obamacare Irrelevant

Once upon a time, six years ago today, President Obama jubilantly signing the Affordable Care Act. Do you recall all the pens he used to sign the bill so he could give them away as political trophies? He’s not so jubilant now. His legacy is in doubt and Obamacare has become his albatross.

Yet too many people think the Affordable Care Act does not affect them even though the law is totally shifting the delivery of care beneath their feet. There is less satisfaction, less personal attention, less care. Welcome to a decline of freedom, which leads to a decline of excellence. Unless we want to kiss our medical excellence goodbye, we need commitment to repeal Obamacare or design a system that makes it totally irrelevant.
