One Way to Opt Out of Medicare

Ten thousand senior citizens are entering Medicare every day. The money to care for seniors comes from payroll taxes of their working grandchildren, who shouldn’t expect Medicare in their future. So, it was fun for me to see a letter written to Samaritan Ministries.

Dorothy from Utah wrote, “I am old enough to be on Medicare, but rather than have the government involved in my health care, which I did not want, I chose to stay with Samaritan Ministries where I could help others with their medical needs through giving and praying. And now that I have had a few large needs…I have experienced and been blessed by the giving of others.” Consider health sharing instead of Medicare when you look at your health care future.
