Exchanges - Not a Marketplace

Government officials are calling Obama's health insurance exchange a marketplace when it's actually a government agency created to impose Obamacare state by state. The term "marketplace" was carefully chosen by a liberal group after conducting research using liberal and conservative participants.

In their report, the Herndon Alliance says anti-government and anti-health care reform folks are "very positive" about of the word "marketplace." So how much did it cost to find a word to dupe the public? Find out why Obama's exchange is not a marketplace and check out our new billboard at NOTaMarketplace.com.

"The Exchange (The Competitive Health Marketplace)," Herndon Alliance, n.d.

"Obscure group shapes reform fight," Carrie Budoff Brown, POLITICO, April 1, 2009.

Presented daily by Twila Brase, President, Citizens' Council for Health Freedom.
