Doctors Join the Ranks of Rationeers

Nine medical groups have issued a list of 45 unnecessary treatments. They range from no antibiotics for sinus infections to fewer X-rays in cardiac care. This is very troubling. These doctor groups are joining with government and health plans to restrict patient access to care. The 45 treatments were called unnecessary or wasteful.

Patients need doctors as advocates. When patients are most vulnerable, they don’t need a doctor who has joined the dark side of rationing. Expect these doctor-certified lists to grow, and more care to be deemed unnecessary. As the lists grow, imagine all the people with insurance coverage who can’t get access to care.
