Uninsured Average Penalty is $1130

One week ago today was the deadline for paying a penalty-tax to the IRS if you were uninsured. Mr. Doug Holtz-Eakin, former director of the Congressional Budget Office, testified to Congress that an estimated 6.3 million people will pay the penalty-tax, which will average $1,130.

Expect more penalties next year. The employer mandate for smaller employers comes into effect in 2016. Mr. Holtz-Eakin said it makes sense for “about 43 million workers” to drop their health insurance. If they seek Obamacare subsidies, taxpayers will be on the hook for the money. Of course, if they become health sharing members they’d be exempt from it all.
