Trump Likes Government Health Care

CNN held a town hall meeting with Donald Trump last week. An audience member asked him what the top three functions of U.S. government are. Along with security for the nation he listed health care and education. Then he added housing and providing great neighborhoods.

He added that Obamacare is a disaster. Then he said government can lead health care but health care should be privately done. He said he wants private health care and competition.

So what do these comments from government to competition mean? Probably that government has a very big place in Mr. Trump’s plans for health care. Nothing the government leads ends up to be private for very long.
