How Medicare Fraud Can Be Eliminated

The $600 billion Medicare program is a huge target for criminals. In 2013, the government lost $58 billion in fraud. Fraud is a problem because it's easy to defraud big bureaucracies. But even worse, Medicare's 132,000 pages of regulations mean every doctor could probably be found guilty of something, and doctors, whose only crimes are a few coding errors, are already being wrongly imprisoned for fraud.

As a result, more doctors are refusing Medicare patients. Meanwhile Medicare is quickly running out of money. So, here's an idea. Let's free all non-senior adults from Medicare so Medicare fraud eventually disappears.
