Refuse To Sign the HIPAA Privacy Form

The next time you go into the doctor’s office or hospital and they ask you to sign the so-called HIPAA privacy form, I want you to kindly but firmly refuse. No law requires you to sign the form. In fact, the U.S. government has a web page telling doctors that you do NOT have to sign the form. It also tells them what to do if you choose to refuse.

If you have any problems as a result of refusing please email your story to us. Some people have been told they won’t be treated. Other clinics use only one signature for a boatload of consents making it hard to refuse. We’re gathering stories now. Please let us know what happens when you refuse to sign the HIPAA form.
