End the Medical Sweatshops

An anonymous physician says doctors made a mistake when they hired MBAs to run the business side of their practice. These administrators now think that the doctors work for them. The doctor writes, “They own us. If we raise our voices, we are threatened with replacement… We have allowed the administrators to be our bosses rather than our facilitators and they have often created nothing more than glorified sweatshops.”

The doctor says these sweatshops threaten the future of medicine because “no value is being placed on training students and residents.” The doctor says physicians should “take back the profession only we know how to run.” I agree. Doctors can join the Wedge of Health Freedom to help that happen. JointheWedge.com

“Physicians ceded control of health care. It’s time to take it back.” Anonymous Physician, KevinMD.com, April 21, 2017.
