Employers Have Good Reason to Drop Insurance

Yet another study, this time from Congress, reports that you may not be able to keep your health insurance. Employers have a really good reason to drop you in 2014 when Obamacare is fully in place.

A survey finds that 71 of the nation’s largest companies could save almost $30 billion by 2014 by dropping coverage for employees and opting to pay the $2,000 Obamacare penalty per worker. Those savings grow to $422 billion over the first decade.

The survey didn’t ask if employers are planning to drop coverage, but several earlier studies have found that up to 30 percent of employers plan to drop coverage in 2014. Time to overturn the law.
