This is Not Health Insurance; This is Government Health Care

The Yakima Washington newspaper says, “State reports 600,000 now insured under health care law.” But not one of these folks got health insurance. Of all these who enrolled through the Washington’s government exchange, slightly more than 285,000 enrolled in the Medicaid expansion program. Nearly 138,000 enrolled in the traditional Medicaid program.

And nearly 153,000 enrolled in Obamacare, a secondary Medicaid program we call “Medicaid for the middle class.” All of these enrollees filled out an application to the federal government, and 76.5 percent got taxpayer-funded subsidies. This is not health insurance. This is government health care.
