Romney Choice Betrays Conservatives

Conservatives felt betrayed when Mitt Romney chose former Utah Governor Michael Leavitt to lead his transition team into the White House. Leavitt, like Romney, supports government health insurance exchanges, Obama’s command and control federal takeover centers.

In fact, Mr. Leavitt’s company, called Leavitt Partners, has been canvassing the country and garnering lucrative contracts to help states establish exchanges in compliance with Obamacare. Six people staff his company’s Health Insurance Exchange Team, one who is the former director of President Obama’s Office of Insurance Exchanges. One person called Leavitt’s appointment Romney’s first step into flip-flopping on the repeal of Obamacare.
