The Dogs Don't Like Obamacare

Robert Laszewski, a pro-Obamacare policy expert, says the Obama administration is not addressing the fact that Americans don’t like Obamacare. In a blog post, he says, “The Uninsured Are Not Signing Up Because the Dogs Don’t Like It.” He shares a story about a dog food company that once created a product scientifically good for dogs, but it didn’t sell. No one knew why, but then a college intern piped up and declared the obvious, “The dogs don’t like it.”

Thus, in Obamacare, the only ones signing up are the poor who get the biggest subsidies and the lowest deductibles. The working class and the middle class aren’t enrolling. They don’t like it. He wants Obamacare made more attractive. Me? I want it repealed.
