How Much is Your Doctor Paid

How much is your doctor paid to treat you? If you don’t know, why don’t you know? You know how much your car mechanic gets paid. You know how much your hair stylist gets paid. One doctor, writing in The Wall Street Journal, says patients in surveys many years ago thought their surgeon was paid $10,000 for a coronary angioplasty when the real number was $900.

Even today he says heart surgeons are paid only $900 for open-heart surgery, including pre-op and post-op care. So where do the thousands of dollars charged for this surgery go? Into the pockets of health plan, hospital and government bureaucrats funded by people who want others to know and decide how much their doctor is paid.
