Baby DNA Bill Passes US House

Last week, the U.S. House voted to reauthorize the $99.5 million Newborn Screening Saves Lives Act. We only found out about the vote the day before, and sent out an alert to the public asking them to contact their Representatives. If you aren’t on our email list for alerts, please go to cchfreedom.org and email us.

This bill has passed the Senate and President Obama is expected to sign it. Shortly before the House vote, Congresswoman Michele Bachmann asked to speak. In her three minutes she detailed her concerns about the end of privacy for Americans due to the lack of parent consent requirements over storage and use of the child’s DNA for government genetic research.
