GAO Report includes $3.7 Billion for Exchange

Last week the U.S. Government Accountability Office issued a report on health insurance exchanges – the centerpiece of Obamacare – or as I like to call them state-based Obamacare implementation centers. The report revealed that the federal government has already given states $3.7 billion for planning and implementation.

Second, it revealed that the six so-called partnership exchanges are just versions of the federally-facilitiated exchange. Third, it revealed that the federal government has not finished building the central data server that states will connect to for sharing boatloads of private data with the federal government. Stopping the exchanges will stop Obamacare. So remember, even if they build it, do not enroll in it.
