Three GOP Camps Post-Obamacare Ruling

U.S. Senator Ben Sasse predicts the GOP will “quickly divide” into three camps after the Supreme Court’s pro-Obamacare ruling. The first camp will say Obamacare is here to stay, and work to “make it…less bad.” The second camp will insist on investing 100 percent of GOP efforts into the repeal of Obamacare. The third camp will insist on a replacement plan as the only “viable political pathway to repeal.”

Senator Sasse says the 2016 election should be a referendum on Obamacare versus an “understandable, common-sense, patient-centric alternative,” with a presidential nominee willing to “enthusiastically champion the conservative cause of putting families in control of their own health futures.” Which camp are you in?
