Did Obama Really Write It?

Last week, the Journal of the American Medical Association published an online commentary written by Barack Obama, J.D. Unless you click “author affiliations” you do not see his title as President. The article about health care reform in the U.S. is 17 pages long on my printer. There are six charts and 68 footnotes.

Are you thinking what I’m thinking? Where’d he find the time to write this? A note says seven individuals from the Executive Office of the President helped him prepare the manuscript. It sounds more like they wrote it and he approved it. The most interesting thing I found in the article was a link to his financial disclosure report. One of the signatures appears to be dated 2018.

“Executive Branch Personnel PUBLIC FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE Report,” Barack Obama, May 12, 2016 (last signature dated May 18, 2018 [sic])
