DC Exchange Faces Lawsuit for Illegal Tax

Washington D.C. has an Obamacare exchange, but the District of Columbia is so desperate for funding they’re planning to tax all insurance companies doing business in the District, not just those involved on the Exchange. Thus, insurers just sued the District for “illegal taking” under the Fifth Amendment.

The operating budget of the D.C. exchange is nearly $29 million, which is ten times higher than the operating budget of the D.C. Department of Insurance, which regulates more than 1,300 insurance entities. The exchange has only four insurers offering coverage and only 50,000 people are enrolled, but the exchange has nothing to do beyond helping them purchase it. No wonder Obamacare is so expensive.
