Obamacare Privacy Lawsuit Proceeds

A new Obamacare lawsuit will be heard in October. Mississippi Governor Phil Bryant and 10 other Mississippians have challenged the federal requirement that citizens disclose medical information to a health insurance company. They say it violates their rights to medical privacy established by the controversial 1973 Roe v Wade case.

The attorneys note that the U.S. Supreme Court did not address the privacy issue although Justice Ginsburg said the law could be unconstitutional if it infringed on a liberty interest protected by the Due Process Clause. Privacy, according to Roe v. Wade, is exactly that.
