Will America Lose the Rule of Law?

Last week, two opposing federal court decisions were issued on Obamacare subsidies. At stake is our legal foundation, the rule of law.

The DC court ruled the federal exchange cannot offer premium subsidies because the plain language of the law forbids it.

But the Virginia court ruled the federal exchange can offer subsidies, claiming the statutory language is ambiguous and open to interpretation.

The D.C. court said there must be legislative supremacy; that judges cannot write law. But the Virginia court said judges can interpret the intent of Congress rather than stick with the language of the law. So how will the Supreme Court rule?

Halbig vs. Burwell, decided July 22, 2014

King vs. Burwell, decided July 22, 2014