Hard Fought & Hard Won

Happy Independence Day. Today we celebrate the victory that gave us freedom. I recently read a book by Glenn Beck called “Being George Washington.” Many of Washington’s troops had no shoes, but they continued to fight despite the snow, the cold and the pain. Trails of red blood stains followed them in the snow as they advanced to meet and eventually defeat the British Redcoats.

We are not fighting against each other today with gunfire. Today we’re watching brilliant fireworks light up the sky. As you remember the liberties hard-fought and hard-won so long ago, enjoy the celebration!
