Hobby Lobby Ruling Ignites Anti-Religious Firestorm

Liberals are scared. The right to religious freedom could undermine their plans for federal takeover of health care. The Center for American Progress, a think tank involved in writing Obamacare, issued a 24-page report audaciously called “A Blueprint for Reclaiming Religious Liberty Post-Hobby Lobby.”

They call on Congress to “put reasonable restrictions on religious liberty” so “religious liberty is not used as a tool to deny needed medical care.” They have already crafted legislative language to end freedom of religion. They say the Supreme Court’s Hobby Lobby decision will dictate choices and discriminate against women. But they plan to discriminate against and dictate choices to all people of faith, including women.
