The Medicaid Cash Cow

Big insurers like Aetna, Anthem, UnitedHealth and Humana are leaving Obamacare but expanding their Medicaid business. That’s because Medicaid is their cash cow. At UnitedHealth, revenue from Medicaid grew 14.7 percent to $8.3 billion.

It’s been called a windfall. The same profiteering happens in Medicare Advantage, the HMO plan for seniors, into which many seniors are being enrolled without their consent.

As one reporter observed, “It seems that insurers are perfectly happy and prosperous competing in the markets where the government is the payer -- Medicaid managed care and Medicare Advantage.” Do you feel the fleecing?
