Washington DC’s Animal Farm

George Orwell must have been writing about the Obama administration and Congress. In Animal Farm, his allegory against Stalin he quipped, “All animals are equal, but some animals are more equal than others.” Apparently members of Congress think they and their staff are more equal.

Obamacare forces them into the government exchange where they will have to pay for their own coverage at Obamacare prices. But when staff threatened to retire or resign the U.S. Office of Personnel Management proposed a rule that would allow the federal government to subsidize all its employees in the exchange even if they aren’t eligible for any subsidy. We won’t get the same special treatment when we don’t like the prices. Are we less equal?
