Obamacare Picks Winners and Losers

Obamacare and the Obama administration have picked winners and losers. First, large employers who don't insure their employees are exempt from penalties for a year, but individuals who refuse to insure themselves will be fined. Second, high income federal employees will have their health insurance subsidized by their employer on the government Exchange, but other high-income individuals will be on their own.

Third, American Indians are required to purchase health insurance, but exempt from penalties if they don’t. Fourth, people with pre-existing conditions will not be charged more but you’ll have to pay higher premiums to cover their cost of care. This is not the end of a very long list of discriminatory provisions.
