The HIPAA Privacy Rule Part 5

Welcome to part five of a five-day series on HIPAA, the “no-privacy” Rule. The rule allows your data to be computerized and shared. But after doctors refused to use electronic medical records, Obama’s 2009 stimulus bill penalizes doctors who don’t. It also adds new intruders. Due to HIPAA and the stimulus bill, 2.2 million entities can share your data.

The Washington Post calls the stimulus, “The Machinery Behind Health-Care Reform,” saying it will allow “unprecedented data-mining...into the practice of doctors, the kind of surveillance” that will also “enable insurers to cut costs by controlling more precisely the care that patients receive.” Thus HIPAA and the stimulus formed the foundation of Obamacare.
