Obamacare Fails Enrollment Predictions

There are 9.9 million people enrolled in Obamacare. This is barely more than the 8 million enrolled last year. Three years ago the Congressional Budget Office said 14 million would be enrolled. Two years ago they dropped that to 13 million. Six months ago, they dropped it to 11 million. They were still off by 1.1 million people.

Two years ago they also said 22 million people would be enrolled in 2016. That’s 12 million more than today. Who thinks that’s happening? Not me.

NOTE: Of today’s enrollees, 8.3 million receive taxpayer-funded premium subsidies, and 5.6 million get additional funds to pay their deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments.
