Patient Privacy for Presidential Candidates

Should presidential candidates be required to share their medical records? Last week I wrote a commentary called, “Seven Reasons to Protect Candidate Privacy.” Find it at cchfreedom.org.

If you think Hillary or Trump or any other candidate should give up their privacy, I suggest you go to cchfreedom.org and read why I’m asking you to think twice before agreeing with those who want candidates to divulge whatever happened confidentially between them and their doctors.

I assure you that peering into someone’s medical record just because they are running for office guarantees nothing except that the doctor’s office can never be assumed safe for patients.

“7 Reasons to Protect Candidate Privacy,” Twila Brase (Commentary), CCHF Health Freedom eNews, September 21, 2016.

Presented daily by Twila Brase, President, Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.
