Tea Parties vs. Big Business

Welcome to the Health Freedom Minute. This is Twila Brase president of Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.

Big Business Should fear the Tea Party.

Freedom Works and the National Center for Public Policy Research commissioned a telephone survey of 801 registered voters who identified as somewhat or very conservative. After learning that Johnson & Johnson had a national ad campaign to help pass federal health reform, their image of J&J dropped from 69 percent favorable to 16 percent.

Although conservatives already hold a negative view of General Electric, the 28 percent with a favorable view dropped to 13 percent after learning GE lobbied for the $787 billion dollar stimulus package. GE admits online that they were actively engaged in the $20 billion dollar Health info technology section of the bill.
