Judge Severs Only the Unconstitutional Mandate

Welcome to the Health Freedom Minute. This is Twila Brase, president of Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.

While Judge Hudson rightly ruled on Monday that Congress’ imposition of an individual mandate to buy health insurance is unconstitutional, he left the rest of Obamacare intact.

As you may know, the writers of Obamacare made a very big mistake. They forgot to include a severability clause. This clause says that if any part of the law is found unconstitutional, the rest of the law remains in effect.

As a result, many hoped that the entire law would be rendered unconstitutional if the mandate was ruled unconstitutional. But Judge Hudson severed only the unconstitutional mandate and left the rest of the unconstitutional bill untouched. In his rationale, he noted that there are 400 provisions unrelated to health care in the law.
