Growing Naysayers on the Obamacare Exchange

Welcome to the Health Freedom Minute. This is Twila Brase, president of Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.

Governor Rick Scott in Florida was the first to say an unequivocal NO to Obamacare. When I had a moment with him a few months ago, he told me he wasn’t going to implement the Health Insurance Exchange. Later, taking questions from the podium, he said it again: No exchange. Everyone in the room applauded.

The opposition is growing. POLITICO now reports that Louisiana Governor Bobby Jindal has returned the exchange grants to the federal government. Georgia has brought their Exchange to a screeching halt. Pennsylvania, South Carolina and New Mexico are reconsidering it.

The Exchange is considered the “lynchpin,” the “glue,” the “centerpiece,” the “most important aspect” of Obamacare. Why would any state governor want to help the federal government take over our health care system?
