Secret Shoppers for Obamacare

Welcome to the Health Freedom Minute. This is Twila Brase, president of Citizens' Council for Health Freedom.

The Obama Administration seems prone to spy on citizens. Remember when they asked their supporters to send them any “fishy emails.” Rush Limbaugh accused them of looking for tattletales and snitches.

Well, a few weeks ago, the Administration prepared to recruit health care spies. These “mystery shoppers” would pose as patients and call the offices of primary care doctors to find out three things: 1) if they were accepting new patients, 2) if they would accept patients with private insurance but not Medicare and Medicaid, and 3) how long it would take to get an appointment.

One week later the Administration shut it down after a storm of criticism. But they did not renounce the idea. They said it just wasn’t the right time.
