Will Vermont Governor Kick Unhealthy Off Board?

Welcome to the Health Freedom Minute. This is Twila Brase, president of Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.

Yesterday I talked about the rationing principles of Vermont’s single-payer health care system and the Governor’s hand-picked five-member board. Now let’s look at their personality requirements.

By law, Board nominees must possess “desirable personal characteristics, including integrity, impartiality, health, empathy, experience, diligence, neutrality, administrative and communication skills, social consciousness, public service, and regard for the public good.”

Most are subjective qualities, but being healthy means the board members won’t often use the system they’re creating. What if they get really sick and find out they don’t like the system? Would they no longer be considered impartial, neutral, and healthy? Will the Governor kick them off the board?
