Does America Need Its Own Javier Milei?

Javier Milei, the new Argentinian president shocked the world on the World Economic Forum stage. He declared, "The Western world is in danger . . . because those who have to defend the values of the West are co-opted by a vision of the world that inevitably leads to socialism and thus to poverty."

He said the "main leaders of the world have abandoned the model of freedom for different versions of collectivism." He reminded them that socialism has murdered over 100 million human beings."

He said not to surrender to the state because "the state is the problem itself." His speech was riveting. He underscored this fact: "Socialism is always and everywhere an impoverishing phenomenon." Clearly America needs a Javier Milei!
