COVID-19 Engineered to Grip Like a “Fridge Magnet”

In January 2020, scientists told Dr. Fauci the Covid virus was likely “engineered.” British immunologist Dr. Angus Dalgleish explains what that means.

He was asked to look at the DNA sequence of Covid-19. His colleagues in Norway had already told him it was “not a natural virus.” In an interview he describes how it was engineered.

Six positively-charged inserts surround the receptor binding site of the virus – the site that binds to human cells. Some were similar to the inserts the Wuhan Institute had published after making another virus more infectious to human cells. He said these supercharged inserts made SARS-CoV-2 attach to human cells in a vice grip—like a refrigerator magnet.
