Congress Advances Bill to Stop DEI in Medical School

Medical schools are imposing DEI training on doctors. The last thing you want is a doctor who is more interested in the color of your skin than the cancer racing through your body. To ban DEI at medical schools, Congressman Greg Murphy, a physician, has introduced a bill called the EDUCATE ACT: Embracing anti-Discrimination, Unbiased Curricula, and Advancing Truth in Education.

It will withhold federal funds from medical schools that use race for admission criteria or coerce students to adhere to racist tenets. Do No Harm's Dr. Stanley Goldfarb says, "Allowing rebranded race-based discrimination to infiltrate medical education is dangerous for future doctors and patients alike." Ask Congress to support the EDUCATE ACT.
