Tell Others the Truth About HIPAA

Twenty-two years ago this month, the so-called federal HIPAA privacy rule took effect. In contrast to popular belief, it ended your medical privacy and patient consent rights – unless a stronger state medical privacy law exists.

For example, HIPAA permits your health records, tests, diagnoses, and doctor's notes to be shared between physicians and hospitals without your knowledge or consent, making it nearly impossible to get a truly unbiased second opinion.

For the next few weeks, I will be highlighting various HIPAA HARMS. HIPAA is a hoax, a deliberate deception foisted on the American people by people with big data agendas. Join us to expose HIPAA by telling others the truth about HIPAA.
