Push to OTC Ivermectin Is Good...and Not Good

Bills in Arizona and Utah seek to give citizens the right to get ivermectin without a prescription. At least five states already allow ivermectin over the counter: Texas, Tennessee, Arkansas, Idaho, and Louisiana.

While these bills are a remedy to the deadly public health tyrants that deprived Covid patients of lifesaving medication, there is a rarely discussed danger.

Requiring legislators to pass laws controversial drug by controversial drug sets a dangerous precedent of government power.

It presumes government power to say no and keeps tyrants in charge until legislators have enough votes to override the bureaucrats. Thus, these ivermectin laws, as welcome as they are, are not as freedom-protecting as they appear.
