Do You Want a Tesla or Health Insurance?

The cost of employer sponsored coverage for a family of four now averages 37.8 thousand dollars a year. What else do you buy every year for that price that disappears every year? At that price, you could buy a Tesla Model Y every year.

What if you got that $38,000 every year in wages? It's your compensation. What if you owned your own affordable coverage and could take it with you?

Real health insurance, the major medical kind that Obamacare prohibits, is affordable. Health care sharing options are affordable. Employer-sponsored coverage that sends more and more of your wages to a health plan every year is theft. Ask your employer for the cash.

"A State of the Union on the $37,824 Problem," Blake Madden, Hospitalogy, July 9, 2026:
